Garden of Winbiger Residence Opened To Past Matrons

A striking setting greeted the eyes of Mrs. Theo A. Winbiger's guests Thursday afternoon when Hermosa Past Matrons met at her home at 207 West Ninth street for a luncheon and garden party.

Tables were discovered on the lawn, set beneath vivid umbrellas and displaying the choicest of dahlias in yellow and rust shades, and roses which varied in tone from yellow and salmon to red. These latter had been brought from the gardens of Mrs. Ruth Hurlburt and Mrs. Roscoe Wilson, co-hostesses with Mrs. Winbiger. Others who assisted in like capacity were Mrs. J. R. Medlock and Mrs. T. A. Mair.

On rising from the luncheon tables guests were called to order by their president, Mrs. H. T. Trueblood, who called upon Mrs. Jacob Bohlander for devotionals. Mrs. Bohlander responded by reading a prayer poem which was followed by general prayer. Current events were cited in response to roll call and the business routine was closed with a report on flowers sent several indisposed members.

An invitation to the association to meet in her Upland home on October 20 for luncheon was extended by Mrs. W. D. Barker, formerly of Santa Ana and an honorary member of the society. Mrs. Barker now resides at 1819 Euclid avenue, in Upland.

A performance which members characterized as unusually capable was given by Miss Betty Jo Williams who delighted with a group of readings new to her audience. Miss Betty Jo was presented by Mrs. Winbiger, program chairman.

Faculty Reception is First Social Event Of College Year

Approximately 400 Santa Ana junior college students assembled last night in Ebel clubhouse for the annual faculty reception, with which social activities of the local institution were launched in traditional manner. Nearly every member of the faculty was present to greet the young people, and heading the receiving line were Dean McKee Fiek and D. K. Hammond; Frank Henderson, city superintendent of schools; M. B. Youel, Rolla Hays and George Wells, of the board of education, together with Mrs. Hammond, Mrs. Henderson, Mrs. Hays and Mrs. Wells.

Miss Agnes Todd Miller was in general charge of the hospitable plans, while Miss Lella Watson presented the artists giving the musical program, Earl Fraser, pianist, and Hayden Adolander, tenor. There was a happy union of the two forms of musical expression, the program proving a thoroughly delightful one in which Mr. Bolander's interpretation of early Italian and English composers, was contrasted with the modernity of present day American and their contemporary composers as exemplified in Mr. Fraser's piano numbers.

"Phyllis Has Such Charming Graces," quaint old English air, was chosen by Mr. Bolander as his first song, with Mr. Fraser at the piano, and Handel's "O Sleep Why Dost Thou Leave Me," followed. "Clog Dance" by Howard Hanson; "Beyond the Mist" by Gardner Eyre, and "The Night Winds" by Griffes were modern compositions interpreted by the pianist. Toselli's "Serenade" and "Ay, Ay, Ay," were included in the second group of tenor solos, and the program ended with the piano numbers, "Tango" and "Malaguena," by Albeniz, and Luceo's "Spanish Dance," played by Mr. Fraser.

Spreading palm branches arranged about the clubhouse, gave a green and lovely background for the great bowls of vivid zinnias arranged by a decorating committee composed of Miss Genevieve Humiston, Miss Frances Egge and Thomas H. Glenn, faculty members.

At the conclusion of the reception and program features, the hosts added the final touch of hospitality by serving punch and wafers with Miss Lillian Dickson, chairman, Miss Dorothy Decker and Miss Ise Hamann in charge.

Guests Arrange Party As Surprise for Their Hostess

Mrs. J. A. Wesley Smith's birthday anniversary, recurring this week, inspired a group of her friends to plan a surprise party, which, held in the Smith home on East Lampson road, Garden Grove, yielded an evening of sheer enjoyment to hostess and guests alike.

Following their unexpected arrival, the young people took part in impromptu games and climaxed one of the contests with a shower of gifts for their hostess. As the evening drew to a close, they took charge of the kitchen and soon arranged for serving refreshments of home-made ice cream and cake which they had provided.

Taking part in the enjoyable evening with the surprised hosts, Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Wesley Smith, were Miss Zelma Jones, Miss Connie Hogue, Miss Bertha Hodgson, Miss Alice Brownmiller, Miss Ramona Weaver, Miss Mildred Weaver, Miss Lorraine Baker, Miss Pearl Smith, Miss Thelma Smith and Mrs. Eva Smith.

Reeves, Cora Rugg, G. R. Safley, William Strassberger, H. T. Trueblood, J. A. Tarpley, Jeanette Terwilliger, Theo A. Winbiger, and Roscoe Wilson, all of Santa Ana, and Mrs. W. D. Barker of Upland.

MISS PAULINE RILEY

MRS. LOUIS CRANDALL

Since they returned from their honeymoon trip to Ensenada early this month, Mr. and Mrs. Louis Crandall have established their home in Alhambra. The bride will be remembered as Miss Bernice Adams, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Adams, 1318 South Flower street. Her marriage to Mr. Crandall was an impressive event performed in the chapel of the First Methodist church, with Dr. George A. Warner officiating. A reception in the Adams' home was attended by a large group of relatives and friends of the young couple. The new Mrs. Crandall is well known here where she graduated from Santa Ana high school and attended Business Institute. For some time she was employed with the Pacific Plumbing company as secretary. She and Mr. Crandall, who is associated with the Los Angeles office of the Dollar Steamship line, are welcoming their many friends to their pretty home in Alhambra.

MRS. FRANK L. BOWMAN

When Miss Dorothy Durkin, daughter of Mrs. Ida P. Naylor, Newport Beach, became Mrs. Frank L. Bowman, the marriage in the Laguna Beach home of Mrs. Mary Wood, a close friend of the bride, was the culmination of a campus romance at University of California, Berkeley. Mr. Bowman, an affiliate of Sigma Delta Kappa fraternity, graduated in law, and his fiancée completed a classical course the same year. She belonged to Delta Delta Delta sorority. Following the marriage of the young people the first week of September, they enjoyed an automobile honeymoon from which they have now proceeded to San Francisco and the home awaiting them there. Mr. Bowman is connected with the California Title and Trust company of the northern city.

MRS. HENRI CLAYTON

With Mrs. Henri Clayton of Ocean avenue, La Habra, entering upon her duties as new president of the La Habra Woman's club, members of that organization are anticipating an interesting year whose theme will be an historical one, developing interest in the romantic history of California. Mrs. Clayton, who has held various secondary offices in the club, had a gratifying success at her first session as president, held in early September, when "California Under Six Flags" was the subject of the address given. The October event will be a Spanish fiesta for which the clubhouse will be given the appearance of a cafe with Spanish dancers to take their colorful way in and out among the tables, while the auditorium stage will be arranged as a patio for the program features. J. E. Liebig Home is Setting for Twin Hospitalities

Mrs. J. E. Liebig was twice a co-hostess yesterday when she opened her residence at 820 Spurgeon street on two occasions to friends bidden in for a bridge luncheon and for an evening card party, respectively. At the afternoon function she was assisted in entertaining by her niece, Mrs. Don Andrews, while her sister, Mrs. Maude Perkins, shared the hosts' responsibilities in the evening.

The same appointments were retained for both hospitalities and were of a particularly graceful character. With an eye to carrying out their plans for a color theme of green and white, the three hostesses combined white anemones of a wax-like beauty with maidenhair fern, for their table centerpieces. Other table adornments contributed to this scheme, details of the luncheon menu on down to the final course of ice cream and small cakes frosted in green and bearing white flowers in miniature, elaborating upon the color combination. Flowers brought from the gardens of Mrs. Roy Hall and Mrs. A. J. Cruickshank were of aid in decorating.

Guests at the afternoon affair comprised two tables of contract and awards were reserved for the most successful contestant in each group. In consequence, prizes were claimed by Mrs. C. V. Davis and Mrs. Frank Peterson.

Luncheon covers were indicated for Mesdames C. V. Davis, J. L. Clark, W. E. Winslow, A. J. Cruickshank, Roy Hall, Frank Peterson and Parke S. Roper, besides the two hostesses.

Receiving that evening with her sister, Mrs. Maude Perkins, Mrs. Liebig welcomed as guests a group of neighbors who included Mesdames John Wehrly, Theo A. Winbiger, J. E. Gowen, Elmer Burns, Clarence Skiles, Helen B. Heil, Anna Richards, Hugh Wiley and Miss Margaret Ore.

Guests passed a pleasant evening at auction, with rewards on this occasion going to Mrs. Elmer Burr and Mrs. Helen B. Heil, whose scores ranked first and second, respectively. A special guest prize went to Mrs. Sam Levin of Los Angeles, a cousin of the hostesses.

Daughters and Guests At Monthly Tea in Mitchell Home

A monthly tea for members of Sarah A. Rounds tent, Daughters of Union Veterans, was held yesterday afternoon when Mrs. Ralph Mitchell was hostess in her home, 922 West Camille street. Hostesses with Mrs. Mitchell were Mrs. Geraldine Beall, Mrs. Florence Perry and Mrs. Pearl Nelson.

Pastel flowers were used in decorating the home for the pleasant afternoon. During the affair, various games were played, with Mrs. E. J. Parker winning the attractive prize offered for a guessing contest.

At the tea hour, refreshments of home made ice cream and cake were served on individual trays. Appointments included dainty lace doilies and pink napkins and nut cups.

Those present were Mesdames Perry Groat, E. J. Parker, C. E. Clem, Earl Shefflin, Olive Baird, Kate Rinsched, Florence Dunn, Miss Minnie Cowan and the hostess group, Mrs. Mitchell, Mrs. Perry, Mrs. Beall and Mrs. Nelson.

States and returning to Florence, will be accompanied by over half a dozen students. They will sail September 23 on the Cunard liner, Corinthia for Southampton, and will proceed to Florence by a leisurely route affording pauses in the Hague, Amsterdam, Cologne, Frankfurt, Heidelberg, Nuremberg, Lucerne, Villa d'Este and Milan, among other European cities. Week end travels through Italy, Christmas holidays in the Swiss Alps, and travels in France are among the unusual pleasures anticipated by the Santa Ana student.

Original Paper of Pegasus Women Concern South

A morning swim preceded the box luncheon and program which Pegasus club women enjoyed as guests of Mrs. George W. Bond in the latter's Balboa Island cottage Thursday afternoon.

Manuscripts submitted during the afternoon period, over which presided Mrs. Earl Morris, president, dealt exclusively with "The South," chosen as the program theme for this fortnight's meeting.

Miss Marjorie Lusk conducted this story hour, which Mrs. C. F. Jackson opened by reading excerpts from Pooker T. Washington's autobiography, "Up From Slavery." Then followed an original story, "A Southern Mother," by Mrs. Morris, after which Mrs. George Bond read a letter from Mrs. W. E. Foote, secretary of the club, who is sojourning in the east. The program was varied at this point by a poem, "Beneath the Southern Cross," read by Mrs. Bond, there following a story, "Pigs From Pudsborough," interpreted by Mrs. Charles C. Brisco. Concluding manuscripts were an original poem, "Just Around the Corner," by Mrs. Charles Fuller, an original story, "In Jasmine Land," by Miss Marjorie Lusk, and Lincoln's letter of proposal to his wife, read by Mrs. Hugh Neighbour.

Mrs. Justus Birtcher was welcomed as a new member, while present, in addition to program participants, were C. F. Jackson and Mesdames Ida Wilkie, Harry Haverly, and Clarence Bond and children, Beverly and George.

Birthday Guests Bid To Dinner, Theater

A dinner and theater party, secretly arranged by Mrs. Frank Waer as a surprise for her son, Roy Waer, proved highly successful as a means of celebrating the latter's eighteenth birthday anniversary.

The dinner affair had its setting in the Waer home on South Bunsu road, where assembled several friends of the host, who had been invited to assist with the surprise plans.

Guests at the dinner and at the theater party which followed were

Afternoon Rites Unite Miss Reafsnnyder and John W. Mitchell

Before a fireplace banked with palms and ferns, against which baskets of pastel hued dahlias were etched in relief by the soft radiance of tall candles, Miss Marguerite Reafsnnyder became the bride of John W. Mitchell, son of Supervisor and Mrs. John C. Mitchell of Garden Grove, at a ceremony held this afternoon at 4 o'clock in the home of the bride's parents, the Rev. and Mrs. Fred M. Reafsnnyder, 819 East Acadia street, Garden Grove.

Proceeding the nuptial hour, Mrs. Irvine German sang "O Promise Me" and "I Love You Truly," to the piano accompaniment of Mrs. Lloyd Rogers, with Irvine German playing violin obligatos. It was to the strains of Mendelssohn's "Spring Song" that the bridal party entered the flower-adorned room, Miss Reafsnnyder on the arm of her father, by whom she was given in marriage.

She was truly a lovely bride in her semi-formal gown of supple ivory satin with yoke of peau d'ange lace, and carrying a bridal bouquet whose Blarcliff roses and snowy sweet peas were wreathed with maidenhair fern. Her only ornament was her bridegroom's gift of a strand of crystals.

Miss Lida Mitchell, sister of the groom, as maid of honor was gowned in French rose flat crepe with touches of velvet in the same soft color and wore a corsage cluster of pale yellow rosebuds and blue delphinium. Kenneth Reafsnnyder, brother of the bride, served Mr. Mitchell as best man.

Wedding vows were taken before the Rev. Grover Ralston, pastor of Garden Grove First M. E. church, after which the new Mr. and Mitchell turned to receive the good wishes of their assembled friends. Refreshments were served during the reception hour by Mrs. Reafsnnyder assisted by her sister-in-law, Mrs. Lida Geren of Santa Ana. The wedding cake attracted much interest with its decorations of white rosebuds and a tiny bride and groom. It was cut with much pretty ceremony, by the bride, to be served with ices and coffee.

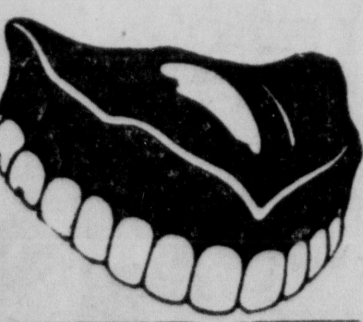

Mr. and Mrs. Mitchell will motor north for their honeymoon in San Francisco, Berkeley and the Redwood forests, and upon their return will locate in Alhambra where Mr. Mitchell is in the branch office of the Catalina Rock and Gravel company. In departing for the honeymoon trip, the bride donned a sports outfit in soft green wool, worn with brown accessories including a smart brown coat.

The bride has lived in Garden Grove since childhood days, when her parents came there to make their home. Graduating from Garden Grove high school, she attended Santa Ana junior college. Mr. Mitchell's parents are pioneer residents of the neighboring community, and the romance between the young people began in their high school days. He followed graduation with a course at University of California at Berkeley and was affiliated with Lambda Chi Alpha fraternity.

Guests at the wedding included only the immediate members of the two families, the Rev. and Mrs. F. M. Reafsnnyder, parents of the bride; Supervisor and Mrs. John C. Mitchell, parents of the groom, and their daughters and son, Lida, Fern and Richard Mitchell; Mr. and Mrs. Leland Mitchell and daughter Marcene; Mrs. Flora Geren, Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Rogers, Mr. and Mrs. Irvine German, Kenneth Reafsnnyder, the Rev. and Mrs. Grover Ralston; Garden Grove; Mr. and Mrs. Clive Mitchell, and son Billy, of San Gabriel, and Mrs. Lois Geren of Santa Ana.

Messrs. Walter Devine, Gene Miller, Carter Kirven, Jack Traverser, Johnny Shinto and Walter Chaffee and the host's father, Frank Waer.

Prohibition Rally
Tuesday Night

Rehearsals for the patriotic prohibition rally and pageant to be held Tuesday evening at 7:30 o'clock in the First Baptist church, are progressing under the direction of the Misses Mabel Brown and Dorothy Hoffman of Niles, Ohio, who are presenting the feature under the sponsorship of the W. C. T. U.

A large group of local children will appear in the pageant, "What Do You Think?" a colorful event depicting a gala day at the court of King Temperance. Singing groups appear at the court to depict the benefits of the reign of King Temperance, and the whole affair promises to be unusually striking and entertaining, at the same time teaching a fine moral lesson.

Varying the program will be a recital of readings by Miss Brown and the appearance of Miss Hoffman in her "Youthful Appeal for Prohibition," based on her recent book, "Which Way?" She will present arguments in favor of prohibition and answer all questions on temperance which may be propounded by either young people or adults in the audience.

District Clubwomen
Meet in Upland
In Two Weeks

Officially opening the fall season of women's club work for the five counties of the Southern District federation, Mrs. Albert Launer, of Fullerton, federation president, this week announced a district board meeting to be combined with an executive meeting of the San Bernardino County federation, at the Upland Woman's club, 590 Second avenue, Upland, on Thursday, September 28. The meeting will begin at 10 a. m.

For purposes of economy and to avoid duplication of effort, Mrs. Launer has planned a combination of county and district board meetings during the entire club year, each meeting to be held in a different county.

The morning session Thursday will include an outline of plans by district chairman, and a "Forum on Forums" which Mrs. Launer will lead, and which will feature topics suitable for forums, qualifications of leaders, and similar points.

In the afternoon Mrs. Earl E. Smith of Anaheim, Orange county federation president, will tell of her summer in Europe as a member of a Sherwood Eddy seminar and the Upland club will provide a musical program. Roll call of presidents will occur at the luncheon hour. Reservations for luncheon should be made with Mrs. R. V. Ward, Upland, by September 27.

A feature of the day will be the distribution of the new yearbooks, which are just off the press, and which contain a complete listing of district officers and chairmen.

V., for they have taken part in the meeting of their Sewing circle and in two benefit parties for the auxiliary, the latest of which was held Thursday afternoon on the grounds of the home of Mrs. Elizabeth Erickson, 1041 West Sixth street.

Garden Party
The grounds of the Erickson home, bordered with rose bushes and shaded with walnut trees, provided an ideal setting for the garden party. Large beach umbrellas had been arranged to add to the festive atmosphere.

Fifty-four members and friends of the circle attended, and were served punch during the afternoon. Both bridge and bunks were played, with Mrs. Charles Winters and Mrs. Alice Rotsler scoring high in the two games. Mrs. N. Reid was consoled at bridge and Mrs. Frances Dresser at bunks.

Awards went to Mrs. Lucille Carter of Stanton and Mrs. Martha Postell of this city.

The finance committee was in charge of the affair, with Mrs. Erickson, chairman and Mrs. Eleanor Shaw, Mrs. Anna Patmore, Mrs. Luella Randall and Miss Verena Bailey assisting. A neat sum was raised for the auxiliary.

Evening Affair
The benefit party given earlier in the week was held in Knights of Columbus hall, where the Special Circle, Bridge and 500 were played, with the result that Mrs. A. Barnes of Orange and W. Spann of Fullerton and N. N. Stevens of Long Beach won bridge prizes.

At a late hour, refreshments were served by the committee in charge, including Mrs. Charles Reagan, Mrs. Oscar Kurtz, Mrs. Charles Lindquist and Mrs. Cecil Cook.

Sewing Circle
The meeting of the Sewing circle, held Wednesday afternoon in the home of Mrs. Charles Graham, Berrydale road, Garden Grove, proved to be a surprise affair honoring the 85th birthday anniversary of Mrs. Frances Dresser.

Gifts presented to Mrs. Dresser were displayed on a beautifully decorated table over which was suspended a yellow parasol decked with streamers in the same tint. Members who could not attend sent gifts and greeting cards to the honoree.

Mrs. Arthur Randall won a special prize award, a large basket of dahlias. The group spent the afternoon sewing.

Those present were the honoree, Mrs. Dresser and Mesdames Eleanor Shaw, Marie Lindquist, Elizabeth Moberly, Bertha N. Dixon, Lillian Hubbard, Gertrude Rowe, Alice Gay, Nannie H. Reed, Bertha E. Helmer, Julia Williams, Phoebe A. Hentz, Luella Randall, Catherine Reagan, Estelle Dresser, Elvira Kurtz, Elizabeth Erickson and a group of special guests, Mrs. Osgood of Balboa, Mrs. Elizabeth Schmitt of this city, Mrs. A. B. Annin of Fullerton and Messrs. Sherman Glaze, H. Moberly, William Brown, Charles Graham and Adolph Erickson, Santa Ana.

EUROPEAN RADIO PROGRESS

By RUTH ANDREWS

The statement is frequently made by many of our most far-sighted economic leaders and men prominent in international affairs that the radio, that modern scientific miracle which has so quickly become a necessity and even a commonplace in our every-day life, will undoubtedly aid in promoting and establishing ultimate world-peace among nations more than any other invention of recent years.

Perhaps this is a great deal to expect of any one device, regardless of its vast merit and worth to humanity. The fact remains that one of radio's greatest blessings is to be found in the way that it makes possible greater unity and understanding among the peoples of the world, bringing them closer in touch with each other's national customs and ideals, ever tending to promote a broader fellowship and a finer conception of brotherhood among men of many lands.

Regardless of radio's shortcomings, which are for the most part temporal and which scientific progress and education are bound to lessen within a few years' time, no other modern invention has done so much to bring light and cheer into the more secluded rural sections, especially the countryside of Europe, where progress has ever been backward through the centuries, hampered by ignorance and intolerance.

It is little short of marvelous to note the great progress that has been made in radio in the various European countries during the past several years. According to a report recently made by the National Committee on Education by Radio, 29 foreign countries now have radio broadcasting stations. An inspection tour of foreign broadcasting stations reveals that seven countries have no stations, while 17 countries own and operate the programs of their stations. In Denmark more people listen to radio than any other country in Europe. Six out of ten Danes are regular listeners. Italy is at

The ashes of Haydn will then be brought from Eisenstadt to Esterhazy. The castle's mausoleum is also being decorated with a relief portrait of Haydn, and with a memorial tablet.

Annual Salzburg Festivals
The annual Salzburg festivals, attended by music-lovers from all over Europe, have been celebrated in elaborate style in the famous old Bavarian city this past month. The famous morality play, "Everyman," was also given under the direction of Max Reinhardt, and the Vienna Philharmonic was conducted in a concert series by leading European conductors.

BOOK REVIEWS

By MARY BURKE KING

A Good Man's Love by E. M. Delafield published by Harper and Brothers.

"A Good Man's Love" is a surprising satire of society and marriage. The life purposes and objectives of the leading characters in the book are short of astonishing.

On the last page, at the climax of the story we read about Monica Ingram, "Walking up the aisle, veiled and robed in white, to the pealing of the organ, just as she had so often waking and sleeping, dreamed of doing." She didn't see the guests, "Monica... was conscious of nothing save that the moment towards which the whole of life had been ending had come at last."

she was marrying. "As she knelt at the altar steps, her heart was filled with a prayer of ardent and humble thanksgiving.... At last, she would have justified her existence." Up to the very last moment she and her mother had both been afraid that something would happen to prevent the marriage. Kneeling at the altar during the service, Monica, says the author, "prayed that if she ever had a child it might be a son."

Monica Ingram was born when a young girl's days were spent in being good so that she might marry a Good Man as quickly as possible. A good man was a man with proper prerequisites, enough money and satisfactory social and family connections. The author has not stopped with the portraying of the events of Monica, the debutante, but reveals also the affect on the young girl's mind of her training, which was the customary training of young girls in English society in the early part of this century.

It is amusing reading and will give any woman reading it much cause for rejoicing that her life is not as Monica's.

Phillip II of Spain by David Loth, publisher by Brentano's. Some of the great reasons they achieve greatness by virtue of their own ability, others are born into positions of power and though their own abilities may be mediocre, granted they have a long life, these men of mediocre talent achieve a degree of prominence that is often confused with greatness.

Such a man was Phillip II of Spain and Emperor of the Holy Roman Empire. Except for a part of what is now France, ruled by Francis the First, and Turkey, Charles was nominally the ruler of all of continental Europe.

Spain during this period was at the peak of her national prosperity. Her cloth, silk and metal goods industries were in a flourishing condition. Gold and silver treasure from America was being brought to Spain. Her armies, more especially her foot soldiers were considered the best in the world. The Spanish church, owning much of the wealth of the country was much less corrupt and more able than their brethren in other countries.

The Inquisition, started under Queen Isabella some 50 years prior to the advent of Phillip as King, continued to serve that rule, as it had his father and Isabella as an instrument not only to persecute heretics, but also as an instrument very useful in subduing rebellious nobles, or in depriving rich merchants of their property and thus replenishing the Spanish treasury, for whenever a man was condemned by the Inquisition his property was forfeited and the state was among the chief beneficiaries.

Phillip II brought to Europe a new cause for war. He waged wars because he believed that men of another faith were scarcely human. With that cry he introduced new refinements of horror and cruelty into the wars.

Both the period and the man were interesting. The author has done them justice. The style is seductive, flowing along so easily that from time to time one becomes aware that the historical facts are not registering because of the fun of reading.

David Loth is the author of "The Brownings"; "Lorenzo the Magnificent"; and "Royal Charles".

Recovery by Sir Arthur Salter, published by The Century Co. Will Rogers made the comment not long ago that we have reached the strange situation where we must wait until the monthly magazines appear for our news. He referred particularly to Al Smith's foretold statement in "The New Outlook."

PREPARATION SUGGESTED FOR LEISURE TIME
Intelligent use of the leisure time promised by the proposed four-day or five-day week might easily make of the immediate future the happiest period America has ever known, in the opinion of Miss Carolyn Haughton, Santa Ana musician.

Miss Haughton, who believes that music, of all of the arts, offers the greatest personal enrichment and is of the broadest appeal, anticipates a wider demand for musical appreciation, with the establishment of these longer periods of leisure. Her conviction that this demand may be met more adequately through class, rather than individual instruction, has led her to organize groups for "ensemble study" of the piano.

A demonstration of her theory that class instruction offers advantages of comradeship, of stimulation, of the development of confidence and of the acquisition of a musical background was offered a group of interested listeners at an informal recital given recently in her studio at 493½ West Fourth street. Two of her pupils, Miss Helen Newbold and Miss Carol Rogers, assisted in this demonstration. The economic advantages of such classes, according to Miss Haughton, will make music instruction available to all persons interested in the art whether from a standpoint of appreciation or of technique. Children, in particular, are expected to benefit from the arrangement.

Miss Haughton emphasizes that a knowledge of musical history and styles, a feeling for rhythm and an understanding of chords form and harmony are essential to the pupil before he may express an "idea" in music, as recommended by a composition. This type of learning, she contends, is more readily acquired in class than otherwise. It is her further belief that this presentation of music from a scientific, as well as an artistic point of view, demands a new order of teachers as well as a new attitude on the part of the parent.

Emotional outlets of a type represented by music and the allied arts are necessary to counterbalance the excesses of modern living. Miss Haughton believes this very condition, she feels, is proof of the timeliness of these new moves toward a more general instruction in music.

75th BIRTHDAY OBSERVANCE OF ANAHEIM ENDS

ANAHEIM, Sept. 17.—Recapitulating for a moment the hardy spirit of the pioneers who settled Anaheim 75 years ago and the bolting for the time much of the courage that it was necessary to foresee future possibilities, descendants of these same people, under the second and third generations, newcomers to the city's portals and friends of the city passed for several hours yesterday to give memory to the founders of "Anaheim's Home." Tapes were played at the Diamond Jubilee celebration. The Diamond Jubilee celebration, while the activities of a week of celebration prepared for yesterday, the climax came in the final day that brought with it the dedication of the historical marker at the old north willow entrance to the city, the picnic at the city park, the dedication of the old mine press and the grand gala, the program in the Greek amphitheater that featured John Steven McGroarty, historian of California and author of "The Mission Play," as speaker of the day and the evening's band concert and German program.

Descendants of nine of the original families were present at the picnic and afternoon's program to share honors in the day and were introduced to the several hundred present by Fayett Lewis, toastmaster. The descendants were: Mrs. Louisa Backs, daughter of Herman Weider; Fred Fischer, daughter of John Fischer; Kate Wright, daughter of Henry Bismarck; Mrs. Clara Moser, daughter of Louis Moser; Minnie Holcomb, daughter of John Zeyn; Mary Dwyer, daughter of F. H. Horstmann; Julius Schneider, daughter of Emma Cole; son and daughter of Fred Schneider; Will Kroeger, son of Henry Kroeger; and Mary Stock, daughter of Tim Bockel.

Trying the best people of Anaheim not to get too far away from the soil that made them and to which they will return, John Steven McGroarty addressed the 500 people assembled in the Greek amphitheater at 2 o'clock and warned them to beware of Babylon's mistake in failing to prepare for the future.

"We must make this new Babylon of the west safe for the young people who are now becoming the greatest race civilization has ever known," he stated.

Edward Backs sang three numbers, "Trees" by Joyce Kilmer, "I Love You California" and "And We'll Love You," accompanied by Mrs. E. D. Kendrick. Edith Lee concluded the afternoon program by singing a farewell song.

At 11 o'clock in the morning the granite stone that will be properly inscribed with its historical significance as the marker honoring the spot that was once the north entrance into the city and presented by the Historical Society of Southern California, was dedicated in a ceremony conducted by John W. Whitaker and Mrs. J. J. Dwyer. A paper, written by Mrs. J. J. Dwyer, on the history of the gates was read by Mrs. William Wallop.

The grist mill and the wine press, fragrant with memories of the good old days, were dedicated at the park in the early afternoon. Mayor Fred Kiesel took charge of the services.

A one hour's band concert, presented by Clanton's 45-piece band from Santa Ana, began at 7:30 o'clock and was given on the platform erected at West Center street between Los Angeles and Lemon streets. The band played old German masterpieces and was enthusiastically greeted by the audience of several thousand people.

The German program, under the supervision of Charles Reeske, followed with Dr. Gustave A. Stieve, attaché in charge of the German consulate at Los Angeles, addressing his fellow countrymen in the German language.

The Anaheim Conservatory of Music presented little Ruth Ellen Saez in several German folk songs. She was in native dress. Bernice Hargrove and Mary Show gave an original musical and the Concordia club chorus of Southern California sang two German numbers.

LIFE FROM A PINCH OF DUST

Dr. C. C. Hurst, a pioneer in the field of genetics, from Cambridge University, England, recently gave an address before the international congress of genetics at Cornell University, in which he stated that life began in some antediluvian garden in which a pinch of dust united with the oxygen of the air, and produced what he calls the protogene, the forerunner of the gene, which has been found to make up life as we know it today. Slowly through the ages life has been growing more complex, until now the scientist has found it possible to direct life into almost any desired channel.

Dr. Hurst says that already we have discovered the formula, during the last thirty years of genetic study, for producing musical geniuses, inventors, painters, philosophers, and other leaders among men. If it be asked why the geneticist does not proceed to create such geniuses, Dr. Hurst replies that they will be created whenever people realize it and want it. In other words, when natural selection gives way to human selection, we can make the kind of men we ought to have. Human selection in the field of agriculture and animal breeding has accomplished wonders. This is manifest in the development of our most luscious fruits and of our fancy breeds of horses, and cattle, and other animals.

When we are dealing with human nature, however, we are in a realm which does not respond directly to human selection. The individual will is still powerful to thwart the best laid plans of the scientist. It will be millions of years before we develop the perfect human. Yet there is no doubt but that we are moving on. Physical diseases are being rooted out; preventive measures are saving children from ailments and deformities which in earlier days were very common. And with all the difficulties in the way, with all the complexities of the scientific formulae which the garden variety of human being can never be made to understand, human life is moving up to higher ground. From a pinch of dust taking on life to a Shakespeare represents quite a distance. Better things are yet ahead.

A NARROW WORLD FOR A METHODIST BISHOP

Bishop Candler, of the Southern Methodist Church, recently stated that he has never attended a movie or a circus. My, what a lot of fun he has missed during his life, and what a narrow world he has been living in!

A life of exclusively religious services, like Jack with all work and no play, must make the bishop a rather unimaginative person. We are reminded of the boy who went to prayer meeting with his maiden aunt, and then went to the circus. "Why, aunt," he said, "if you ever went to the circus you would never go to prayer meeting again." There is such a thing as narrowing life unreasonably, and the good bishop seems to have found it.

We have not been informed why the bishop has never played to the extent of attending a movie or a circus. It may be that he is too busy with important affairs to spend time on such trivialities. But we have a belief that the bishop would get a "kick" out of a good movie and a circus that would surprise him. We even go so far as to say that it would do him good in his contacts with men. There is such a thing as narrowing life so much that a large proportion of it is never lived. Life is a whole, not a segment of a circle. This is not to say that a man to live life whole must taste the vices as well as the virtues; but he should know life's realities, if not in personal experience, at least by observation.

Ruskin, long ago, in his great passion for righting wrongs, cried out in exasperation, "Does the bishop know that Bill is knocking Nancy's teeth out in the alley? If he does not know, it is his business to know." We would commend that remark for the consideration of the good bishop who, in his abstinences, permits himself to go too far in his fears of contamination with the things of the world.

ARE WE IN FOR STRIKES?

One of the marked phases of the depression of the last three years was the absence of strikes and social disturbances. The militant little band of communists over the country has been holding demonstrations. But that was about all.

The question now is, has that era of good will passed? The farmer's strike, the strike of the coal miners in Illinois, and the recent Bonus Army demonstrations in Washington, are unwelcome symptoms. If, now the railroad executives insist upon another 10 per cent cut in wages among railroad men, further trouble may be ahead.

It is to be hoped that wise counsels will prevail among both industrial and labor leaders. These are trying times for all of us. The breakdown of the economic machine has been complete during the last three years. Honest efforts have been made to reconstruct that machine; but as Prof. Taussig of Harvard recently stated in a magazine article, no one seems to be wise enough to suggest a way out. All that can be said is, we have always come out of these depressions with the turn of the cycle; and it is quite probable that we shall soon come out of this one. In the meantime, it behooves every one to be cautious and considerate. Employers who are having a very hard time deserve consideration. Workers who are up against it seriously deserve help and sympathy. Strikes are essentially war measures, and should be the very last resort. These are the days for conciliation, not for strife.

It is very easy to lay all the blame for these disturbances upon agitators and floaters. But it should always be remembered that floaters and agitators simply use conditions as they are to foment troubles. Rarely is it possible for agitators and floaters to stir up trouble unless there is injustice, or hunger, or tyranny somewhere. The great masses of the people are not looking for trouble. They simply want a livelihood, and a chance for their children. Given these, and we need have no fear of agitators or floaters.

A Minnesota doctor has put a window in a cow's side so he can watch her digestion. There seems to be no end to what these snoopers will do.

PRIMARY ELECTION UPSETS

Some strange things are happening over the country as a result of the primary elections. In Louisiana, the veteran Senator Broussard has been relegated to private life. Senator Huey Long had decreed that he had been in the Senate long enough, and the kingfish won out. In Iowa, Brookhart was eliminated, and in our own state, Shortridge, Cramton in Michigan, the congressman who was defeated two years ago by a "wet" opponent, comes back again. Score one for the "drys" against the two "wets" just elected in Maine. The November elections will probably make further changes.

These certainly are anxious days for seated statesmen. Heretofore, possession of a seat was nine points in the possessor's favor. But this rule is not working out this year. The voters are in a mood of protest, and are looking for a change. It may be a leap from the frying pan into the fire, but they are doing it with a relentless deliberation, believing that things might be better, and they cannot be worse, if a change be made. No official seems to be free from the thrust of this protest vote. This appears to be the year for the man who is out rather than for the man who is in.

Must Prayer Be Archaic?

San Francisco Chronicle

Many will find it hard to understand the protest made in England against including in a prayer of supplication, "In the policy of our government for the restoration of credit and prosperity, Thy will be done." The petition, appointed by the Archbishops of York and Canterbury for a special occasion, has been excepted to as too modernistic in language and too material in import for use in divine worship.

On the material side the obvious answer to the criticism is that the one universal prayer of the Christian church includes, "Give us this day our daily bread." The archbishops' prayer asks for the means to win daily bread.

From earliest times the pious have gathered to ask divine protection against devastating elements, to supplicate for rain in time of drought and for cessation of flood in time of too much water. These petitions deal with matters no less material than credit, prosperity and governmental policies. As to the modernism of the language, it is no more modern than the things prayed for. Economics is a modern science and its general relation to government policies ever more modern. If prayer is to keep pace with human needs it must use the vocabulary of human needs.

The small boy who amended his bedtime petition for daily bread by adding "and plenty of butter on it" was not, at any rate, lacking in faith.

Gifts to Education

The Oakland Tribune

From a set of encyclopedias, a single compressor and coil, to money sums of a thousand dollars or more, gifts have come from the residents of the state, during the past few months, to the University of California. They total in value more than twenty thousand dollars, but their whole story is not to be calculated in dollars and cents. The University is getting back something from men and women anxious to show their appreciation of its work. It is being aided to do for someone else that which a donor regrets he was without opportunity to accomplish. And it is being asked to encourage research into fields which an individual who sends money feels could be explored for the common good. There are many gifts to education, large and small, and behind each may be read a story of human interest.

More Truth Than Poetry

HERE'S HOPING

Upon learning that phosphorus and lime in the diet will prolong life,

There still are things I want to know
I've not found out as yet.
The while the swift years come and go,
How aged shall I get?
Shall I live long enough to see
The dawn of perfect peace,
All countries and all men agree,
And war and discord cease?

I want to live for many a year
Upon this interesting sphere.
I trust that I shall still be here
For quite a little time.
And still remain a strenuous
And an investigating cuss;
Please, waiter, pass the phosphorus
And add a little lime.

I hope that I may stick around
Till legislators think
That men are not to Hades bound
Who sometimes take a drink.
I yearn to learn before I go
Beyond the vale of tears,
If honest men will run the show
Instead of racketeers.

I want to live for some time hence
Till sundry blustering low-browed gents
Have learned at last that common sense
Can triumph over crime.
I hope to live till eighty plus,
And see us out of all this muss.
Hey, waiter! in my phosphorus
Put just a dash of lime!

Thoughts On Modern Life

SETTING A GOAL FOR OUR SCHOOLS

Yesterday I referred to the fact that Carleton Washburne recently put to the educational leaders of the major nations three leading questions as follows:

(1) Do we want to educate children to perpetuate and perfect the existing social order?

(2) Do we want to educate children to work towards a new social order, the outlines and aims of which we have definitely forecast in our own minds?

(3) Do we want to devote the schools primarily to the development of each individual to his own fullest capacity, leaving the future social order to a generation of individuals so developed?

Finding the right answers to these three inclusive questions is a necessary preliminary to any intelligent setting of a goal for our schools.

In searching for the right answers to these questions, it is right that we scour the world to find what answers other peoples are making to these questions.

We must not, however, make the mistake of accepting uncritically the educational theory of another nation just because it seems theoretically right and seems to be working well in that nation.

The goal of a national system of education must be determined not only in terms of the special temperament of the people in question but in terms of the stage of social evolution in which the people in question finds itself at the moment.

In his important volume on Remakers of Mankind, in which

Carleton Washburne records the results of his conversations with the educational leaders of the major nations, he makes the following significant observations:

(1) There come times of swift and cataclysmic change, when, in order to prevent the disintegration of society, a definite social form must be decided upon and all society's energy directed toward its realization. Russia and Italy have found themselves in that situation.

(2) After a social order has been newly achieved through struggle there is a necessary period of stabilization when the onrush of change must be checked, when the gains must be consolidated. Poland and Turkey feel themselves to be at this point, as did our forefathers after the American Revolution.

(3) Later, just as there was the need of checking the swift current of change through stabilization, there comes the need to stimulate growth in a stabilized society, lest it rot. Japan, England and America are perhaps examples of this third phase.

There is much acuteness in this analysis. In the period of educational reassessment and reconstruction into which we must inevitably move, we must be on our guard against aping the educational policy of, say, a Russia or an Italy that has set out to put the national mind in a strait-jacket of standardized indoctrination. We are not at that stage in our social evolution.

PEACE AND STRATEGY

We have two dogs, Pat a wire-haired terrier, Mike an Irish retriever. Both of them are handsome. Both are intelligent. Both are beloved household pets. A ride in the car, a trip to the golf course, is the delight of their hearts. It is seldom that they can be allowed to go. Every time they hear the car coming they make ready. First they ask for an invitation.

"No. Not today. You can't go today. We have company and dogs cannot go along when there is company."

At once Pat sits down beside the bags. He is nothing daunted. He is going to try as long as possible. Only when the car starts without him is he willing to admit defeat. I pick up the bags and he is at my heels. The instant the door is opened he leaps in and stands beside the driver, tail up, eyes fixed ahead, deaf to all calls and commands. He is going.

Sometimes he overpowers us and we take him along, because it is too much trouble to haul him out. Usually he is lifted and set on the road and emphatically informed that he is not going. No use crashing the gates.

What is Mike doing all this time? He is not to be seen. More than likely he is waiting down by the first turn in the road. When the car comes along he will trot out of the bushes, stride in the middle of the road, smile from ear to ear, and get into the car.

We can't leave him in the middle of a state road. The cars will run him down. We don't want to turn about and go back up the long hill to the house with him.

He wins. The only way to get him is to shut him in the house, under guard, before the car starts. He wins twice to Pat's once. The statisticians always do beat out the forecasters. Reason stays longer, reaches further, wins in the end. That holds out for nations, children, or dogs. Reason belongs to the mind and Mind, you know, is the Infinite in expression.

Force is useless when expended on children. When they are little it teaches them nothing but that you are bigger and stronger. They resolve, not to mend their ways, but to wait until they are as big as you are and give you some of your own. You haven't reached the root of the matter and discovered the idea that impels them into mistaken action. You can reach that only by reaching their minds.

As the children grow older they resent force. They are angered by it. They center, not upon the idea that they have done wrong and that it is necessary that they correct their attitude and action, but upon the fact that you used your power and your strength to force them your way. You touch ed their sacred person. The resentment and anger this caused are going to shut out your righteous purpose from their sight. They are not going to adjust their conduct. They are going to hold to it in thought at least, and wait until they can tell you what they think of you. And it won't be in the nature of a bouquet.

Force is something to keep in the background, the further back the better. It is for emergencies only. Reason, strategy, understanding, are the forces we need. They will conquer error, cure error, eliminate error. There is no other way.

FRENCH VILLAGES BURNED

On September 17, 1918, Germans burned French villages along the Moselle as American and French forces advanced. Allied artillery retaliated by shelling the fortress of Metz.

American forces in Lorraine advanced on a front of five miles in one of the first offensives in that sector in many months. Their progress was difficult because of the rough country.

Allied troops continued their victorious progress in the offensive against Bulgaria, taking many towns and thousands of prisoners. The flank of the First Bulgarian army was turned and it was forced to begin a retreat into its own territory.

In a curt note, the United States rejected the Austrian proposal for a peace conference.
